Nan Keohane will speak on the need to engage in a more radical re-envisioning of how our universities can be organized to make them more hospitable to scholars of both sexes, and to clear the path for success for women (and men) in the future.

"Re-Envisioning the Academy for Women (and Men)"

Thursday
October 13
3:00 – 4:00 p.m.
A.D. White House
Geurlac Room

Join us for a reception following the lecture

Nannerl O. Keohane
Laurance S. Rockefeller Distinguished Visiting Professor of Public Affairs, Woodrow Wilson School and the University Center for Human Values, Princeton University

Nan Keohane will speak on the need to engage in a more radical re-envisioning of how our universities can be organized to make them more hospitable to scholars of both sexes, and to clear the path for success for women (and men) in the future.

Presented by the CU-ADVANCE Center
(For information, contact advance@cornell.edu)